

AS A PC USER, I can see the potential to benefit from Access BPL. But, as much as I'd like more connectivity options, I don't think we should pay the price of interfering with all these other forms of communication.

For that reason, I'm asking the FCC to let power lines remain just that and leave broadband Internet to the cable television and telephone companies whose technologies best support it.